

02:30

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0e1qK5MR_IE

Steer your career in the right direction.

Metro Transit in the Twin Cities [usually refers to Minneapolis and Saint Paul] is hiring and offers a friendly flexible work environment with great advancement potential and benefits. But don't take my word for it. Let's go behind the scenes to see what the professionals are saying.

Anything in metro transit that doesn't produce a profit we work on, so any of our service trucks, police cars, equipment like bob cat trailers, anything and everything we work on here so it's a kind of mixing pot of everything we do every day. If you like hands-on work and training, Metro Transit support vehicle maintenance department may be you're calling.

A lot of people come in and stay for thirty-forty years. You can't beat that. It's hard to find places like that anymore but you know we have a lot of guys who've been here a really long time and that's one of the things I was looking for. I want to be with a company that I'm gonna stay with.

Each day is different at Metro Transit support vehicle maintenance department. They come in for oil changes usually every three months three thousand miles somewhere in there and we give it a thorough inspection every time it comes in. We check brakes, we look over the motor, we check all the fluids, make sure that there's no leaks, check tires, check all the suspension components, grease everything that gets done every three months.

Metro Transit support vehicle maintenance department is challenging.

It's a good work environment. You give it a try and you're not gonna leave. No one leaves they come and they stay because they like it so much.

Metro Transit support vehicle maintenance department is high tech and needs trained professionals.

Say you're interested in automotive, we have actually some intern programs that we do here to give you a job to get you in the shops while you're in school. We really are trying to reach out for the younger community trying to bring them in. Jump on our website, there's a lot of information.

Metro Transit support vehicle maintenance department offers a variety of ways for career advancement.

If you like the challenge, figuring things out, taking things apart putting them back together again, mechanics is a good job to have. It's always gonna be here because there will always be a need for mass transit and public transportation. It's good here because they got good benefits with the retirement and the healthcare and everything. It's good, it's very good and it's a good secure job.

Metro transit serves the community which offers workers a sense of pride in their careers.

If you're in school and you're looking for a career path not quite sure what you want do I would definitely look into Metro Transit. It has a lot of opportunities that you wouldn't realize.

*Metro Transit is the transportation resource for the Twin Cities, offering an integrated network of buses, light rail and commuter trains as well as resources for those who carpool, vanpool, walk or bike. It added a light-rail link between downtown Minneapolis and downtown St. Paul in mid-2014 and is developing enhanced transitways throughout the region.

